

Divorce Services

Your clients choose you because they want the best.

Let us help you give them your best!

Our professionals are available to assist you with marital litigation. We can help you and your clients with the complex financial issues that often accompany your cases, including: assistance with pre-nuptial agreements, financial planning, temporary and permanent periodic alimony and support, discovery, document management, forensic investigative accounting, valuations, equitable division and settlement, trial and deposition, expert testimony, and post-trial support. These services are described in additional detail, below.

Temporary and Permanent Periodic Alimony and Support

It is often necessary to identify, quantify, and document income available for support. We can help you with this. In providing this service, we will calculate after-tax disposable cash flows and prepare support alternatives. We can also assist you with the determination of child support in accordance with statutory guidelines and the proportionate contribution of the parties to that support. When there are differences in tax rates between the payer and the recipient, we can help determine the optimum level of spousal support (lower cost to the payer; higher spendable cash to the recipient). We frequently advise on tax issues related to alimony, child support, and equitable division of property.

Discovery

Early engagement of our services allows us to provide assistance with discovery requests and responses and with the initial identification of marital and non-marital assets and liabilities.

Document Management

We offer extensive document organization and control capabilities. We can assist you in that regard, as well. We can also help you with the development of timelines and preparation of financial documents and exhibits.

Forensic Investigative Accounting

Forensic investigation is another of our firm's distinguishing services. We can investigate and fully develop the financial aspects of your cases. We can help you determine the parties' standard of living during the marriage and changes in their net worth. This is often accompanied by identification of hidden assets, understated income, and non-wage benefits.

Valuations

Our valuation experience includes businesses, pensions and retirement plans, stock options, and intangible assets, among others. Several highly credentialed valuers are on our forensic investigative team.

Equitable Division and Settlement Assistance

Design and presentation of settlement alternatives for your consideration are normal issues that we deal with. We also identify and consult with you on tax issues related to those alternatives.

Trial and Disposition Assistance

Upon your request, we will help prepare your clients for their financial testimony and assist you with financial and valuation questions for the opposing parties and their witnesses.

Expert Testimony

Our experts have testified in numerous trials and depositions. We prepare exhibits and reports and provide expert testimony in support of our findings to help the judge understand complex technical issues. We expend the effort it takes to give us confidence in our testimony and convince others of our objectivity.

Post-trial support

After trial or settlement, we can assist in drafting qualified domestic-relations orders and review settlement agreements prior to submission to the court. Many clients need post-divorce financial assistance. We help by providing tax and accounting, business consulting, and financial planning services. If you need a consultant or an expert witness for assistance with the financial aspects of marital litigation, we will be glad to provide you with our CVs and references. Contact us to obtain more information.

Contact

James R. King, CPA/ABV/CFE, CVA, CFE | jking@websterrogers.com | 803-312-0001 | 877-512-0001 (toll-free)

Patrice Sebastian, MBA, CPA/ABV/CFE, CVA, CFE | pviton@websterrogers.com | 803-312-0001 | 877-512-0001 (toll-free)